Carbery, Mary. The Farm by Lough Gur, the Story of Mary Fogarty (Sissy O'Brien). London: Longmans, Green and Co., 1940.

Pp. xx, 282

Yale: Bz64n 937 cb

[This book contains a series of recollections by Mary Fogarty, born in 1858 in Limerick, which have been woven by Mary Carbery into a continuous narrative. It presents a rather romanticized account of the kind of life a middle class farmwoman lived in Ireland during the latter part of the nineteenth century. --Analyst]

Evans, Emyr Estyn. Mourne Country, Landscape and Life in South Down. Dundalk: Dundalgan Press (W. Tempest) Ltd., 1951.

Pp. xii, 226; 17 plates, 93 text figures

[This excellent volume is a combination travel book and ethnography of the Mourne Mountains area in County Down. Its contents follow the same general plan as the author's Irish Heritage and Irish Folkways (9: Evans and 13: Evans, this file). However, since it pertains only to a certain district in Northern Ireland, it has not been processed for the ER6 Rural Irish file. --Analyst]

Freeman, T. W. The Congested Districts of Western Ireland. The Geographical Review, Vol. 33, pp. 1-14. New York: The American Geographical Society, 1943.

Yale: E10 G132 v. 33

[This article is a review of the population problems of the congested districts of western Ireland, i. e., of Donegal, Leitrim, Mayo, Galway, Kerry and western Cork. Since the problem is touched on in other works, this source has not been processed for the ER6 Rural Irish file. --Analyst]

Graham, Mrs. J. M. Transhumance in Ireland. The Advancement of Science, Vol. 10, pp. 74-79. London: The British Association for the Advancement of Science, 1953.

Yale: A46 10b 10

[This source is a study based on historical records of transhumance, or "booleying," in Ireland. She draws the conclusion that when English interference with Irish customs was slight, transhumance was an important part of Irish agriculture. --Analyst].

Haddon, Alfred Cort and Browne, C. R. The Ethnography of the Aran Islands, County Galway. Proceedings of the Royal Irish Academy, Third Series, Vol. 2, pp. 768-829. Dublin, 1891-1893.

Yale: A49 20 18

[This is a report similar to those in 10: Browne and 11: Browne, this file, on the Aran Islands. Included are discussions of the physiography, physical anthropology, sociology, folklore, archeology and history of the islands. -- Analyst]

Lane, Ralph. Change and Organization in Rural Ireland. Human Organization, Vol. 14, No. 2, pp. 4-8. New York: The Society for Applied Anthropology, 1955.

Yale: Nml0 +Sol53 13-15

[This article is a brief study of land use and land holdings in rural Ireland, the effect of emigration on their size, and of the three main types of farmers, the small holder, the medium holder and the rancher. It concludes with a brief estimation of the effects of new agricultural organizations on the life of the farmer. --Analyst]

Lucas, A. T. Footwear in Ireland. The Journal of the County Louth Archaeological Society, Vol. 13, pp. 309-394. Dundalk, 1956.

Yale: Bz91 L93 C83 13

[This article is concerned mainly with a survey of the use of soleless stockings in Ireland, although it also touches upon other footwear. It is concerned primarily with the historical literature. Some mention of archeological speciments of footwear is also made. --Analyst]

Mogey, John M. Rural Life in Northern Ireland. London: Geoffrey Cumberlege, Oxford University Press, 1947.

Pp. xvi, 240; 8 plates; 44 text figures; 65 tables

Harvard: Econ 6474.80

[This volume consists of five regional studies made for the Northern Ireland Council of Social Service (Inc.), together with an assessment of rural life in Northern Ireland as a whole. Information is given on ecology, demography, the effect of the government on rural life, and changes in rural social life through the last seventy-five years. A tremendous amount of information is presented in the form of tables and figures, with brief sections explaining the meaning of each. However, since the material is restricted to Northern Ireland and does not deal with Irish rural life in general, it has not been processed for the ER6 Rural Irish file. --Analyst]